Newsletter

Spring 2012

New Series, Volume 4

Editor's Message

You are reading the fourth issue of LANGUAGE & SOCIETY, the Newsletter of the Research Committee 25 of the International Sociological Association (ISA). This issue of the Newsletter will provide readers with important information about the activities of our Research Committee.

First of all, you will find information about the upcoming ISA World Forum of Sociology, which is to be held in Buenos Aires, Argentina, August 2012. Besides, you will find information about the city of Buenos Aires.

You will also find information about the second issue of the e-journal "Language, Discourse, & Society", which is now on its way to be published in June. I would like to thank the contributors of the first for the high quality of their articles. In case you have not read the first issue of Language, Discourse & Society, please download it at: <http://www.language-and-society.org/journal/issues.html>). Now, the second issue is almost ready.

Please remember that the call for articles for Language, Discourse & Society is open on a permanent basis, only if you are interested in proposing an article for issue 3, please consider to send your proposal within the next weeks. You will find the call for papers for Language, Discourse, & Society in the Newsletter.

Language, Discourse, & Society is an international peer reviewed journal with a scientific board composed by the members of the RC25 executive board. It is published twice annually in electronic form, and it will be open to articles dedicated to all aspects of sociological analyses of language, discourse and representation. The journal has its ISSN code and it's going to be listed in the most important databases of Open Access Journals. In this newsletter you will also find important information regarding the awards launched by the Research Committee on Language & Society of the International Sociological Association, one for graduate students and one for scholars.

The Newsletter you are reading contains a news section about conferences, publishing opportunities and relevant information from the members. I would like to stress that the Newsletter has benefited from feedback from readers in the past, so please send information about conferences, grants and publishing opportunities which might be of interest for other RC25 members.

As usual, If you have any suggestions or criticisms, please do not hesitate to contact the Newsletter editor at: federico.farini@unimore.it

Information about the second ISA World Forum of Sociology

An introduction by: Margaret Abraham, ISA Vice-President and ISA Forum President

The times in which we live call on sociologists to engage in research that strengthens links between our discipline and the public sphere. The Second ISA Forum is devoted to "Social Justice and Democratization" and will take place August 1-4, 2012 in Buenos Aires, Argentina. It will provide an array of opportunities for a global dialogue about transformative change.

The Forum provides not only an excellent venue for the different Research Committees and groups to hold their respective interim meetings but also an important opportunity to foster greater synergies between research committees as well as among the research committees, working groups and national associations. The discussions and dialogues should provide the basis for collaborative and comparative research projects.

The Forum promises to be a lively occasion for considering the challenges to and possibilities for promoting social justice and democratization in the 21st century. I look forward to a second exciting Forum of Sociology!

RC 25, Language and Society, will participate in the Second ISA Forum of Sociology in Buenos Aires!

MAIN THEME: THE LANGUAGE OF JUSTICE

The list of sessions organized by RC25, provisional as of March 15, 2012 can be reached at: <http://www.isa-sociology.org/buenos-aires-2012/rc/rc.php?n=RC25> (sessions in alphabetical order)

Programme Coordinators for RC25 sessions are:

Celine-Marie PASCALE, American University, United States, pascale@american.edu

Amado ALARCON, Rovira & Virgili University, Spain, amado.alarcon@urv.net

Information about Buenos Aires

Buenos Aires is a wonderful city. Really. You will find it all: art, culture, politics, beautiful architecture, amazing food, busy city life and a happening night life – from classic theatre to alternative music shows, you can always find a way to enjoy yourself in the city of the hundred neighborhoods (“los cien barrios porteños”).

Buenos Aires, the capital of Argentina, has been the political, economic, social and cultural center of the country. Together with its surrounding counties (the so-called “Gran Buenos Aires”), Buenos Aires hosts almost 40 percent of the entire population of the country, which reached 40 million in 2010. Ethnically, Argentines are mostly mestiza/os, that is people with mixed European, Indigenous, and African roots. However, there has been a cultural and political elevation of the European heritage, which has translated into the prioritization of whiteness over other racial/ethnic groups. It is only recently that there have been more activism and policies in effect to revive the pride and recognition of Argentines of African descent and Indigenous roots, as well as to address racial/ethnic discrimination against “non-whites,” particularly immigrants from the main sending countries in Latin America (Bolivia, Paraguay and Perú) and Asia (China, North Korea and South Korea).

Because of this, I want to encourage all of you to spend a few days more (and why not, a few weeks more?) in Argentina so you can go beyond the limits of Buenos Aires and get a more comprehensive idea of what the country is like. Places like Misiones with the Iguazú Falls in the Northeast, Jujuy with the Quebrada de Humahuaca, and Mendoza with its wineries in the Northwest, Córdoba with its Jesuit Block and La Pampa with its estancias (ranches) in the center, Bariloche with its lakes and skiing centers in the Southwest, Puerto Madryn with its whales in the Southeast, and of course, the Glaciers in the very southern tip of Argentina’s Patagonia, are only some examples of the many wonderful sites you may choose from to get a different taste of Argentina’s diversity.

While in Buenos Aires, there are several locations that I would personally recommend you not to miss (and please, do browse websites and guides with information for tourists to get a more thorough perspective).

- La Recoleta: this is an upper scale neighborhood where you will find many beautiful and entertaining sites and things to do. You can walk by the cemetery, visit several museums and art galleries, like Museo Nacional de Bellas Artes (Fine Arts), Centro Cultural Recoleta (Cotemporary Arts), and MALBA (Latin American art). Then, you can stop by the traditional coffee shop La Biela (where I recommend you to order a café with a “veredita,” a classic, tasty sandwich or with medialunas, if you’re into a sweeter taste). If you are there on the weekend, you should not miss walking by the Feria de Artesanos of Plaza Francia, where you will not only find beautiful handcrafts, but also be able to hear live Latin American music and see graceful tango dancers. You can also step into the Buenos Aires Design gallery, and why not, sit in one of the many restaurants where you can enjoy all kinds of food at all times of the day or the night.

- San Telmo – Not to be missed, ideally, spend a Sunday day there. This is a traditional neighborhood of tango. You will find the famous Caminito, you will find many very good tango shows, you will be able to browse antiques in outdoor markets, walk around Lezama Park, as well as visit the Museo Quinquela Martin. For those who love soccer (“futbol”), you can take a look at the world famous Boca Juniors stadium (yes, where Diego Maradona used to play).

- Plaza de Mayo – The political and economic center of Buenos Aires/Argentina. Here is where you will find the Casa Rosada, the Cabildo, the Cathedral, the Central Bank, and consequently, where the most important social and political mobilizations took place, from the 1810 and the 1890 Revolutions to the mobilization for the release of Juan Domingo Perón in 1945, the struggles for the return of democracy in the beginnings on the 1980s (about which you can learn much at the Espacio para la Memoria), and the mobilizations against the economic crisis in 2001. Ideal to visit during a week day, so you witness the vibrancy of Buenos Aires' downtown, you can combine this walk with a visit to Manzana de las Luces with its mysterious tunnels, take a walk by Florida street where you can find many leather goods shops, and end your tour by going to one of the most beautiful and traditional joints of all Buenos Aires, the Café Tortoni in Avenida de Mayo.

- Puerto Madero – not far from Plaza de Mayo, this is an area where you can go for lunch or dinner, since the old warehouses by the river had been renovated into a path of trendy restaurants and bars where you can have fun and enjoy very good food (I particularly recommend you to eat at La Caballeriza, and then have an ice cream at Freddo).

- Avenida Corrientes – for book and theatre lovers you should take a walk along this avenue, particularly between Florida Street and Callao Avenue, so you also pass by the famous Obelisco as you cross 9 de Julio Avenue. All theatres will offer good options, but I highly recommend you to stop by and see any show offered at the Teatro General San Martin as well as to take a little detour and visit the Teatro Colon (world famous opera house). As you walk by Corrientes Avenue you will stumble upon hundreds of bookstores that are to die for – again, while all of them will present you with amazing offers, I suggest that you don't miss Liberarte. Just around the corner of the Teatro San Martin and Liberate, and because you will most probably be very hungry by then, eat lunch or dinner at Pippo, one of the best restaurants ever to get an authentic feel of “porteño” life. All their menu choices are good, but my favorite is the “fettuccini mezzo mezzo” (a very generous plate of handmade fettuccini with basil and butter).

- Palermo – one of the broadest and most varied neighborhoods of the city. Subdivided into Palermo Chico, Palermo Viejo, Palermo Alto, Palermo Hollywood, and Palermo Soho, you can find interesting, trendy and traditional sites and activities all around. From excellent restaurants, cafés and bars, to handcraft outdoor markets, bookstores and designers clothing shops there is a little bit for all tastes in this area.

To end, some last suggestions. If you would like to go shopping, there are many malls around the city. Among the many malls, I recommend you to visit any one of these three: Abasto shopping (built on the premises of one of the old open food markets of Buenos Aires), Patio Bullrich shopping mall (located in one of the most exclusive neighborhoods of the city, thus, including more upper scale stores, and built over the premises of what used to be a cattle market), or Galerias Pacifico (at Florida street and Córdoba Avenue, a historical landmark with amazing architectural design and murals by famous Argentinean artists Berni, Castagnino, Colmeiro, Spilimbergo and Urruchúa, where you can also visit the Centro Cultural Borges).

In regard to the culinary experience of being in Argentina, I will have to say that even vegans should go ahead and try at least a tiny piece of meat: you will not believe how delicious meat can be! Any restaurant called “Parrilla” will be great, so don’t be afraid to try. Once in the parrilla, you should go for chorizo and morcilla as an appetizer, and for the main course try asado de tira, bife de chorizo or lomo, which you can accompany with a traditional mixed salad (ensalada mixta) and papas fritas al caballo (fried potatoes with fried eggs). In any case, if you are not into becoming a voracious meat eater, don’t despair – you can be very happy by eating salads, empanadas, sandwiches and/or cheese platters, and of course, Argentinean-Italian food – pasta is great at all Italian cantinas, and please try pizza Argentinean style at, for example, the traditional Los Inmortales, where I recommend you to try pizza with faíná as well as empanadas. Lunch and dinners are to be accompanied with wonderful Argentinean wine (all kinds are very tasty, but Malbec is the best red and Torrontés is the best white). Finally, I should ask you to take advantage of the thousands of *café*s where you can enjoy delicious espressos, café con leche and cappuccinos together with typical pastries like Argentinean croissants (the so-called medialunas), vigilantes, tortas negras, and churros with dulce de leche.

A last word about safety - yes, it’s a bit dangerous. I recommend that you don’t flaunt that you have a lot of money to spend – just have enough on you, and leave the rest, together with your passport (a photocopy of it is good enough to walk around) at the hotel, in a security box. It is OK to use Taxis, but I recommend that you ask the hotel receptionist for a trustworthy car service company which they/you can call in advance to take you around. The best place to exchange your currency to Argentinean Pesos is at the Banco La Nación in EZEIZA, the airport when you will arrive at, and later on, once in the city, at this same bank or at currency exchange stores. In order to transfer from the airport to your hotel, you should use the services of Manuel Tienda Leon – you can get your ticket when you arrive to the airport, right after doing migration. There are other options, but this one service is the best and safest one.

Well, I hope you enjoy Buenos Aires, and that you are able to visit another city in Argentina – you probably don’t go so far south often, so you should take advantage of it – many times the air companies offer combined plane tickets to Buenos Aires and other cities.

Best of luck, and salud!

Solicitation of applications for peer-reviewers, e-journal Language, Discourse and Society

Language, Discourse and Society recognizes the value and importance of the peer reviewer in the overall publication process – not only in shaping the individual manuscript, but also in shaping the credibility and reputation of a journal. Language, Discourse and Society is committed to the timely publication of all credible scientifically based manuscripts submitted for publication. As such, the identification and selection of reviewers who have expertise and interest in the topics appropriate to each manuscript are essential elements in ensuring a timely, productive peer review process.

As articles in English, French and Spanish may be submitted, application for potential reviewer who are able to read also in French and/or Spanish are welcome. The peer-review process even more important as it is a component of evaluation process for the new RC25 Awards (cf. the description of the awards in this issue of the newsletter): for each article, reviewers will be ask to fill a short evaluation grid to facilitate nominations for RC 25 Awards. Generally, reviewers are asked to return their comments within one month. In an effort to facilitate the selection of appropriate peer reviewers for Language, Discourse and Society, the editorial board solicits application for potential reviewers, allowing us to create a long list of scholars in the many areas of interest and expertise covered by the journal. If you would be interested in being considered as a reviewer for Language, Discourse & Society, you can email your application, in which you state your area of interest and your language expertise to Federico Farini

from: Stéphanie Cassilde, Chair of the RC25 Award Committee

Dear members, I am pleased to announce the creation of two RC 25 awards. The « Language & Society Graduate Student Award » is dedicated to promising researcher. The « Language & Society Academic Award » is devoted to active scholars in the field. Both awards are linked to Language, Discourse & Society, which is the new e-journal of RC 25. These awards were defined in accordance with the full board and we exchange a lot to create all steps of the selection process. The first edition of RC 25 awards will take place in Buenos Aires with a ceremony at RC 25's reception. I am looking forward to read your work in Language, Discourse & Society and to see you there.

Eligibility:

All published articles in Language, Discourse & Society are eligible. Regarding the deadline in relation to next Interim conference, all published articles until three months before this conference will be considered for the Awards which will be granted at this occasion. Submissions from scholars who are members of the ISA and RC25 are encouraged, but membership is not necessary to be eligible for these awards.

For the Language & Society Graduate Student Award, the candidate must be registered for a graduate degree but cannot hold a Ph.D. at the time of submission (copy of the student card should be provided together with the application). All authors holding a Ph.D. at the time of submission are considered as eligible for the Language & Society Academic Award. In case of multiple authorship, the highest degree is taken into account. Thus, if one of the authors holds a Ph.D., the article is eligible for the Language & Society Academic Award and not for the Language & Society Graduate Student Award.

Selection Process:

On the basis of an RC 25 Awards short evaluation completed by peer-reviewers during the application process of articles for Language, Discourse & Society, the journal editor will forward a selection of published articles in Language, Discourses & Society to the Award Committee. The Award Committee is formed by three scholars and a chair. It will be able to evaluate articles in English, French and Spanish. The chair of the award committee will be responsible to the Executive Board for the call for the Award Committee Members, and will chair the final award session as a moderator. She/he won't take part in the final decision regarding which articles will be awarded. The final decision will be made only by the three scholars of the Award Committee. These three scholars can't be members of the editorial board of Language, Discourse & Society. They also can't be peer-reviewers for the journal.

Call for articles for e-journal Language, Discourse and Society

Language, Discourse, & Society is a new professional e-journal for scholars in the field; Language, Discourse & Society accepts electronic submissions year round. Please send your proposals to: journal@language-and-society.org

Guidelines for Contributors

1. Articles and Book reviews may be submitted in English, French and Spanish.
2. Contributions must be original articles, not published, nor considered simultaneously for publication in any other journal or publisher.
3. There is no standard length: 6,000–8,000 words (1000-1500 in the case of book reviews) is a useful working target but where it is justified, longer or shorter pieces can be considered.
4. Title, author or authors name, affiliations, full address (including telephone, fax number and e-mail address) and brief biographical note should be typed on a separate sheet.
5. Include an abstract of 200-300 words summarizing the findings and at most five keywords.
6. Use New Times Roman, 12 point font, 1.5 space, and page numbers.
7. Submissions should use as little formatting as possible. Do not use bold, italic or titles with capital letters.
8. Tables must be numbered (Table 1, Table 2, etc.). Number figures and photographs consecutively (Figure 1, Figure 2, etc.). Each one must include a descriptive title.
9. Minimize the number of footnotes. Do not include endnotes.
10. Minimize the length of quotations. In case of quotations, referencing in the text should be as follows: (Brunet, 2007:15).
11. Regarding references: (Brunet, 1995), (Brunet & Spener, 2008) and (Brunet et al., 2006) if the reference concern more than two names. Use letters (a, b, etc.) to differentiate publications from the same author in the same year, (Brunet, 1995a).
12. Bibliography section: all references cited in the text must be listed in this section, and vice versa. List the references in alphabetical order by authors' last names. If the same author has more than one entry list the publications in order of the year of publication. Follow this citation system:
 - Journals: García, Ignasi. (2000): "Language and Call Centers in Pakistan", International Journal of Globalization & Languages 205(3): 51-63.
 - Book Chapters: Brunet, I. & Smith, A. (1998): "Languages and Economic Integration", in P.P. Kholer and P.A. Jenkins (eds): Linguistic diversity in Europe. Madrid: Publicaciones Universitarias: 101-123.
 - Books: Barry, A. S. (1999): Borders and Languages. Dallas: Dallas University Press.
 - In the case of electronic publications, include the electronic address of the references.
13. Use a recent version of Microsoft Word for submitting your article.

Peer Review Process

Language, Discourse & Society selects its articles following a double blind, peer review process. Once the Editor has checked that the contribution follows the author guidelines, it is sent to two anonymous reviewers with expertise in the contribution's field. The editor will communicate the results (rejected, accepted or accepted with modifications) of the evaluation to the corresponding author. If the article has been accepted with modifications, authors should return back a new version of the article with the modifications and/or their reasons for not doing so. The name of the referees and acknowledge to their work will appear in the last issue of each year.

Publication Frequency

Language, Discourse & Society is published twice annually (June and December). Language, Discourse & Society can publish special issues about specific research themes. For these special issues, specific calls for papers will be announced. If you are interested in editing a special issue contact the Journal Editor: journal@language-and-society.org

Section Policies

Articles: Open submissions; Peer Reviewed

Monographic Issues: Open submissions; Peer Reviewed

Below, you may find the preview of the cover page of the second issue of Language, Discourse and Society which will be published in July. In honor of Argentina, host of the forthcoming ISA world Forum 2012, the cover will follow the colors of the country's flag, white and light blue. We are waiting for your article proposals and book reviews.

Call for entries Sociopedia.isa

Sociopedia.isa is a new online publication of the International Sociological Association with review articles on subjects in the social sciences. It is a new concept in the production and dissemination of knowledge as it combines the best of two worlds: i) the opportunities the Internet offers for rapid publication and dissemination ii) the quality guaranteed by thorough and imaginative editing and peer review. All the articles in sociopedia.isa are up-to-date, 'state-of-the-art' reviews and will be revised on a regular basis. Each entry will have a discussion section to supplement it. Once a paper is accepted and finalized it will only take a few days before it is published online.

Sociopedia.isa is a joint venture of the International Sociological Association (ISA) and SAGE Publications. The editorial office of sociopedia.isa is located at the VU University in Amsterdam. Sociopedia.isa was launched during the ISA World Congress of Sociology in Gothenburg on July 13th 2010. At the moment, it includes over 40 peer reviewed articles, some of which are also published in French and/or Spanish. Various articles are supplemented by commentaries and/or replies.

Members of Research Committee 25 are invited to submit a paper for sociopedia.isa; SAGE has agreed to pay authors of accepted entries $250 upon completion of the manuscript.

Attached you may find an example of a sociopedia.isa article (attachment 1) and the guidelines for sociopedia.isa (attachment 2). The latter document indicates in more detail what the aims and scope of sociopedia.isa are, what structure the entries should have and what the submission procedure looks like. The social psychology of protest

sociopedia.isa

Jacqueline van Stekelenburg and Bert Klandermans
VU University, The Netherlands

abstract Social psychological research has taught us a lot about why people protest. This article provides a theoretical and empirical overview. Discussed are grievances, efficacy, identification, emotions and social embeddedness, followed by the most recent approaches, which combine these concepts into dual pathway models. Finally, two future directions are discussed: (1) to shed light on the paradox of persistent participation and (2) to clarify how perceptions of sociopolitical context affect protest participation.

keywords collective action ♦ emotions ♦ grievances ♦ identity ♦ social psychology of protest

Why do people protest? This question has always intrigued social scientists. Why are people prepared to sacrifice wealth, a pleasant and carefree lifestyle, or sometimes even their very lives for a common cause? This question brings us to the level of analysis of the individual and therefore to the realm of social psychology. Obviously, other disciplines like sociology and political science have protest as their study object too (for an overview, see Klandermans and Roggeband, 2007), but in this article we focus on the social psychological approach and point to literature from sociology and political science where applicable. People – social psychologists never tire of asserting – live in a perceived world. They respond to the world as they perceive and interpret it. Indeed, this is what a social psychology of protest is about – trying to understand why people who are seemingly in the same situation respond so differently. As social psychology explores the causes of the thoughts, feelings and actions of people – and primarily how these are influenced by social context – it has a lot to offer to the study of protest participation. We illustrate this point with an overview of the state-of-the-art theoretical approaches and a review of the empirical evidence.

The question as to why people engage in protest has occupied social psychologists for at least three decades, and it has received diverging answers over the years (see Klandermans et al. [2008] for empirical evidence combining these explanations; Van Stekelenburg and Klandermans [2007] for a theoretical overview; and Van Zomeren et al. [2008] for a meta-analytical overview). In this section we try to assess where we stand and propose future directions that theorizing and research might take.

Before we proceed to the social psychological answer as to why people protest, we devote a few words to protest and protest behaviour itself. Protest is a form of collective action and of social movement participation at the same time. In this article we focus on protest participation rather than on the broader categories of collective action and social movement participation (see Snow et al. [2004] for overviews). There is a vast array of specific protest behaviours that people might exhibit. Wright et al. (1990) have proposed a framework based on three distinctions: the first between inaction and action, the second between actions directed at improving one's personal conditions (individual action) and actions directed at improving the conditions of one's group (collective action). The third distinction is between actions that conform to the norms of the existing social system (normative action like petitioning and taking part in a demonstration) and those that violate existing social rules (non-normative action like illegal protests and civil disobedience). This distinction is important because one may expect that the motivational

"Living Social Science" – a new concept

1. AIMS AND SCOPE

Sociopedia.isa is a new concept in the production and dissemination of knowledge. It combines the best of two worlds: the opportunities the internet offers for rapid publication and the scientific quality guaranteed by thorough and imaginative editing and peer review. While experienced editors and peer review ensure the highest possible quality, the internet makes it possible to provide the most recent 'state-of-the-art' assessments. Sociopedia.isa, then, offers 'living social science'.

Sociopedia.isa is an online database with 'state-of-the-art' review articles in social sciences. It guarantees users that the reviews are up-to-date and will be updated on a regular basis. Each entry has a discussion section to supplement it.

Sociopedia.isa is an ISA project developed by four founders: Izabela Barlinska, Bert Klandermans, Kenji Kosaka and Michel Wieviorka. It is a joint venture of the International Sociological Association (ISA) and SAGE.

The founders are the first Editors of Sociopedia.isa and appoint Associate Editors and an Editorial Board consisting of senior and junior experts in the field. The Editors solicit entries and subject each to a peer review process. All entries in Sociopedia.isa will be subject to a rigorous procedure of double blind peer review.

Entries will be included on this basis. They can be submitted by the author or commissioned by the Editors. The Editors will ensure that updates are prepared on a regular base. If an author is unable or unwilling to provide an update, a new author may be solicited.

To each article an edited discussion section is added, which is open to readers. Commentaries will be refereed by the Editors and Associate Editors. Based on the discussion, they may ask the author to write an update of his/her entry or they may ask another scholar to write a commentary or a separate entry.

2. STRUCTURE OF ENTRIES

Each article should contain several elements. Please structure the article in accordance with the indicated order. If the article doesn't meet the following requirements, the editorial board of Sociopedia.isa cannot take it into account.

- Some general remarks:

- Length: the article should not exceed 7,000 words in total, excluding the bibliography.

Narratives of Place, Belonging and Language: An Intercultural Perspective, by Máiréad Nic Craith, Palgrave Macmillan, 2012, ISBN: 978-0230202634

Whether myth, novel or fairy-story, part of the human condition is to tell stories about ourselves and our society. This book focuses on stories of contemporary, European-born authors who have lived 'in-between' two or more languages and experienced different cultural and linguistic environments. Drawing on a strong theoretical framework, the book explores the human desire to find one's 'own place' in new cultural contexts and the role of language in shaping a sense of belonging in society. The research draws substantially on original life narrative interviews with writers who write at the 'cutting edge' of languages. These oral narratives are supplemented with published memoirs in English, French, German and Irish. Throughout the author reflects on her own fieldwork as a temporary migrant in Germany.

Michael Burawoy presents the issue

Buenos Aires is a particularly appropriate stage for the forthcoming ISA Forum with its theme “Social Justice and Democratization.” As Alberto Bialakowsky and Alicia Palermo, President and co-President of the Local Organizing Committee, and Henrique Martins, President of ALAS (Latin American Sociological Association), write in this issue of Global Dialogue, not only has Latin America cultivated progressive movements for social justice and democracy but its sociologists have played a heroic part in those movements. In so doing, they generated a dynamic and distinctive regional sociology that will be showcased at the Forum.

“Social Justice and Democratization” is appropriate not just for the place but also for the historic moment. Samia Mehrez opens this issue of Global Dialogue with reflections on the anniversary of Egypt’s “January Revolution” – dwelling on its multiple meanings that have circulated within Egypt and abroad. Cairo’s Tahrir has indeed inspired a year-long global wave of social movements upholding social justice and democracy. Seemingly from nowhere, movements fearlessly took on dictatorships in Tunisia, Egypt, Libya, Syria, Yemen, igniting European movements against fiscal austerity, converging with Occupy Wall Street spreading through the US and boomeranging back across the world. Nor should we forget the massive protests in Israel, in Chile, and most recently in Russia. The grievances may be national, but the movement is global.

These are not so much movements of the exploited, though they have joined in, but of the dispossessed – those whose existence is defined by precarity. They are movements of students or ex-students or more broadly of youth, dispossessed of their future, of opportunities to utilize their skills and knowledge. They also include movements of peasants dispossessed of their land or water – in China, India, the Philippines, Brazil, Bolivia and elsewhere. Occupy movements have also come up against urban enclosures, battling the police to hold onto supposedly public spaces.

While Occupy movements pose a symbolic challenge to capitalism, they present a real challenge to sociology. Studies of inequality can no longer confine themselves to the 99% but they must pay close attention to the 1%. We cannot limit ourselves to income but must study wealth, and how the 1% exploit the 99% through, for example, various forms of debt servitude. Political sociology has to move beyond a focus on electoral democracy that has proven incapable of countering social injustice, incapable of regulating finance capital. The Occupy movements have defined themselves by their participatory democracy. Here too Latin America has been the pioneer. Structural adjustment policies that destroyed economies in the 1990s, led to a decade of counter-movements, not least the Argentinean occupations of factories and public spaces. Just another reason why Buenos Aires is the place to be, August 1-4, 2012.

Global Dialogue appears five times a year in thirteen languages. It can be found on Facebook, and at the ISA website. Submissions should be sent to Michael Burawoy: burawoy@berkeley.edu.

Language, Literature and Style in Africa
(A Festschrift for Professor Christopher Olatunji Awonuga)

(taye4laide@yahoo.com)
Kehinde A. Ayoola, Obafemi Awolowo University, Ile Ife, Nigeria
(kehinday77@yahoo.co.uk)

Papers are invited for publication in Language, Literature and Style in Africa, a book that honours Professor Christopher Olatunji Awonuga and his work in the fields of Linguistic/Literary Stylistics and Applied Linguistics. Currently Dean of the School of Postgraduate Studies at Covenant University, Ota, Ogun State, Nigeria, Professor Awonuga is a well-known scholar who has been an excellent teacher and mentor to several academics who now work in Departments of English and Languages in Nigerian universities. His greatest asset, in our view, lies in the care with which he nurtured many of his students through the rigours of their doctoral and masters theses, a factor largely responsible for his appointment to the Deanship of the Postgraduate School at Covenant University.

This book project is an opportunity not only to celebrate Professor Christopher Awonuga, but also to highlight and bring together the seminal contributions of those scholars who are interested in research on language, literature and style in Africa. The accent on Africa is motivated, as discussions relating to the primary literary artefacts (poetry, prose and drama) produced on the continent hardly feature in the discussions in this field.

In view of the foregoing, contributors are invited to submit papers that generally address the relationships between language, literature and style in Africa. In particular, papers relating to all areas of stylistics, theoretical and methodological, are welcome, as are those from fields such as applied linguistics, conversational analysis and (critical) discourse analysis that are closely related to the discussions on language and literature. In addition, contributions that deal with the traditional genres of language and literature (poetry, prose and drama) as well as those of the media, advertising and music are welcome. Papers on canonical written and oral texts, and emerging prominent African voices are especially welcome.

Publication schedule

July 31, 2012: Receipt of abstracts.

Abstracts should be about 250 words, and must have a recognizable thesis statement or research question, an explanation of the research methodology, reference to emerging results (if applicable) and the relevant references (not more than 5). Abstracts are to be submitted by email attachments to the editors (see email addresses above).

August 31, 2012: Notification of the outcome of the review of abstracts.

November 30, 2012: Submission of full papers (for those whose abstracts are accepted. For style, use either MLA or APA).

February 28, 2013: Notification of the outcome of the review of papers.

March 31, 2013: Submission of revised papers.

May 31, 2013: Submission to the publishers. Expected publication date: Late 2013.

Language, Migration and Social Mobility in Catalonia, Alarcón, Amado & Garzón, Luis G. (eds), published By: BRILL (23 September 2011)

<http://www.brill.nl/language-migration-and-social-mobility-catalonia>

This book presents the results of a research on the integration of second generation migrants in Catalonia. Drawing on in-depth biographical interviews, we demonstrate the link between language and social mobility. Language is a particularly important social issue in Catalonia. A bilingual region in northeast Spain, Catalonia has been receiving foreign migration for several decades. Nowadays, some of the children of those migrants are entering the labor market. For many migrant families, providing social mobility for their children was one of their main goals. What effects does bilingualism have on the social trajectories of migrant children? Is Catalan important for social mobility? The book answers these questions focusing on the fate of three migrant communities: Argentineans, Colombians and Moroccans.

Malaysian Minority Communities. Speaking in Many Tongues

Edited by Dipika Mukherjee and Maya Khemlani David

IIAS Publications series

ISBN 978 90 8964 271 4 * March 2011 * Paperback * 208 pages

Available in the United States via the University of Chicago Press at Controversies and problems with regard to language policy and language education still exist in Malaysia. Despite the attempts of language policy makers to promote multilingualism, the implementation has been marred by political and religious affiliations. Malaysia is a melting pot of many different cultures and ethnicities, the three largest being Malay, Chinese and Indian. Therefore, an analysis of the language variation in this polyglot nation will help in understanding the variety of languages and those who speak them. This book gathers the work of researchers working in the field of language change in Malaysia for over two decades. As there is no book published internationally on the language policy in Malaysia and the effects on the language change in urban migrant populations, this book is a timely contribution not only to an understanding of Malaysian linguistic pluralism and its undercurrents, but also to an understanding of the Indian Diaspora.

Dipika Mukherjee is professor of linguistics at the Shanghai International Studies University.

Maya Khemlani David is professor of linguistics at the University of Malaya.

Book synopsis:

This book provides a detailed overview of functional and pragmatic approaches to the study of language in use. Edited by three scholars in the field, it comprises chapters written by academics from the Faculty of Languages and Linguistics, University of Malaya, who have been teaching these courses at the Masters level. The book is therefore useful for students at the postgraduate level and also suitable for undergraduate linguistic students who wish to know about approaches to and relevant theoretical frameworks for language in use. Examples taken from the Malaysian context and works by Malaysians are included in all the chapters making this book a unique and interesting contribution to the field.

About the editors:

Azirah Hashim is Professor in the English Language Department, University of Malaya (Malaysia) and Chairperson of the Humanities and Ethics Research Cluster at the same university.

Maya Khemlani David is Professor in the English Language Department, University of Malaya and Head of the Co-curriculum and Electives Section at the same university.

James McLellan is Senior Lecturer in General and Applied Linguistics at the University of Waikato (New Zealand).

Interazione medico-paziente e multiculturalità, Numero monografico della rivista Salute e Società, Ed. Franco Angeli

A cura di Franca Orletti, Marilena Fatigante

Il volume include i contributi presentati all'interno del Seminario Internazionale dal titolo "L'interazione medico-paziente: dalla ricerca alla professione. La sfida della multiculturalità", tenutosi a Roma il 23 novembre 2010 presso l'Università di Roma Tre, e organizzato da Franca Orletti e responsabile del Laboratorio LION e direttrice di Dipartimento di Linguistica dell'Università di Roma Tre, e Marilena Fatigante, ricercatrice in Psicologia Sociale presso l'Università Sapienza di Roma. Il volume affronta il tema della comunicazione medico-paziente in generale e dedica una discussione specifica, attraverso presentazioni empiriche e resoconti di chi opera nel settore, ai vincoli e ai problemi interpretativi che si generano nell'incontro con pazienti migranti. Esso intende dunque proporsi come occasione di approfondimento e incontro tra ricercatori nel campo della sociologia della salute, della psicologia medica e dell'analisi dell'interazione da un lato, e a professionisti e operatori in campo medico e sanitario dall'altro, illustrando applicazioni possibili della ricerca agli ambiti professionali sanitari, esaminati in particolare in situazioni di differenza culturale.

Di seguito l'elenco dei contributi da intendersi parte del volume:

Introduzione, di Franca Orletti e Marilena Fatigante

Sezione 1 – La comunicazione medico-paziente: caratteristiche e specificità dell’interazione con professionisti e operatori in ambito sanitario

The 7th International Gender and Language Association Conference will be held in São Leopoldo, Brazil, from June 20 to June 22, 2012. <http://www.unisinos.br/eventos/igala/>

IGALA 7 (7th International Gender and Language Association Conference) invites submissions for oral presentations, posters, organized round tables (aka panels), and workshops on all scientific approaches and disciplines to analyzing and interpreting the relationships among language, gender and sexuality.

With the theme Resignifying Gender and Sexuality in Language and Discourse, IGALA 7 aims to bring together scholars from diverse fields of knowledge as well as geographical regions who are interested in broadening and deepening our understanding of the complex relationships among language, gender and sexuality. In so doing, we encourage new ways of signifying these concepts and their interrelationships, in the following conference thematic areas:

1. Gender, sexuality, body and identities
2. Gender, sexuality and health
3. Gendered performances as discourse
4. Gender and (dis)empowerment
5. Gender, class, ethnicity and age
6. Gender, sexuality and institutions
7. Gender, media and technology
8. Gender and violence

The European Observatory for Plurilingualism

http://plurilinguisme.europe-avenir.com/index.php?option=com_frontpage&Itemid=1 is an official association created in 2005 in order to take into account linguistic issues in social, economic, cultural and political contexts. Its aim is to maintain the diversity of languages. The website helps to share articles, conferences, calls, news and resources related to languages. It is available in 8 languages : French, German, Spanish, English, Italian, Hungarian, Romanian and Portuguese. Institutions and individuals can become member of the European Observatory for Plurilingualism. Without being a member, it is possible to receive the newsletter and to participate to the animation of the website (transmission of information, being a local correspondent, participation to translation workshops, etc.).
